

IIM BANGALORE HOSTS A TEACHING WORKSHOP FOR DOCTORAL STUDENTS FROM JAN 02 - 04, 2020

While most PhD programs enable doctoral students to develop deep competencies in research, they are found wanting when it comes to imparting teaching skills. Doctoral students pursuing such programs therefore often find themselves looking for ways to improve their effectiveness as teachers and educators. It is precisely this vacuum which the Centre for Teaching and Learning at IIM Bangalore aims to fill.

The Centre is offering a three-day Teaching Workshop for Doctoral Students from January 02–04, 2020. Participants will not be charged any fee.

A three-day workshop cannot make someone a great teacher, but it can certainly ignite a passion for teaching amongst young doctoral scholars.

- The workshop will be conducted by senior faculty members from IIM Bangalore who are passionate about teaching and have rich experience in teaching participants from industry, government and the development sector, in India and abroad.
- The workshop will introduce participants to learning theories, pedagogical choices, case teaching methods, course design and evaluation methods.
- The cohort size will be kept small to maximize impact. The final list of participants will be announced from nominations sent by Directors or Heads of Doctoral Programs. Those who are close to finishing their doctoral programs will be given preference.

On-campus accommodation on a twin-sharing basis for workshop participants may be provided subject to availability.

Please send in nominations along with the current CV of the nominees to ctl@iimb.ac.in by Monday, December 02, 2019.

Date: January 02-04, 2020
Venue: IIMB Campus, Bangalore
